

March 27, 2013

Memo

Re: Co-Directors of APPROACH Research

It is our great pleasure to announce that effective immediately, Drs. Steve Wilton and Matthew James will assume the roles of Co-Directors of APPROACH research. Steve and Matt will assist Bill Ghali in charting the strategic research direction of the very successful APPROACH project. Both of these individuals have great expertise in health services research and clinical trials and will add significantly to the research productivity of the group. Mentorship of young trainees and facilitation of new approach related projects will be enhanced. As everyone is aware, APPROACH remains a vital component within the Libin Cardiovascular Institute and the Institute of Public Health having published well over two hundred papers in the last ten years. It has become a key backbone for many health services researchers and we look forward to an ongoing very bright future for this group. Dr. Ghali will continue his oversight role as the Research Director but much of the day to day research operations will be looked after by Drs Wilton and James.

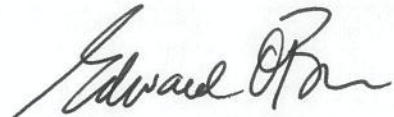

Regards,

Todd Anderson, MD, FRCPC

Bill Ghali, MD, FRCPC

Ed O'Brien, MD, FRCPC